“Just do it in Excel”
– every company somewhere
down the road

Are you still managing your portfolio with spreadsheets?

“Just do it in Excel” – ever heard that before?

Most likely, if you continue to use Excel spreadsheets to manage projects and do not see compelling reasons for the change, you are not alone. Starting to plan projects in Excel is often the first step to professionalize project management in general. It quickly gives you an overview over all (running) projects and you can sort them as needed. However, the management of the growing complexity of projects and portfolios is soon leading to a death by spreadsheet.

But how to start driving a professional and efficient project portfolio management without the need of excel sheets? In the following pages you'll get to know the value of PPM and you'll see an easy way with no financial risks – no product risks – and no methodical risks to bring your business forward.

Get help to be able to solve common PPM/PMO challenges

Do any of these sound familiar to you?

- No centralized place to request projects
- No visibility of all the work that is going on
- No visibility on all the projects in the portfolio
- Projects that run over budget
- Data integrity issues
- Lack of visibility to key milestones and performance
- Poor communication of project status and performance
- People don't know how to initiate new projects
- Long delays and missed deadlines

How modern PPM solutions solve these problems

Teams that utilize spreadsheets and other tools to track their portfolio can spend hours reconciling data from multiple sources in order to create even basic portfolio reports. Data from spreadsheets and isolated tools are static and often out-of-date by the time the information is reported to senior management. This is why businesses are increasingly turning to modern PPM solutions to overcome these challenges. With the right PPM platform in place, portfolio managers can accelerate timelines across the board thanks to increased visibility and real-time scheduling tools.

This insight helps reduce costs considerably, giving portfolio managers clarity into spending — as well as which projects are valuable, and which are lesser priorities. PPM solutions also help organizations make better investment decisions. It creates an environment that leads to predictable and repeatable project success. This can be ensured by using best practices, principles and proven methodologies during the project life cycle by establishing a PMO and using the PPM solution to guide through the process.

No financial risks
 No product risks
 No methodical risks
 – that’s really a smart start.
